

Amazing purple grace

In 2011, Marie-Denise Douyon 's inspiration is imbued with a quest of the absolute and the divine; a need to express and bear witness to the breath of creative life, of the original spirit, of the sense of the sacred that she believes anchors us all, to the fragility of our human dimension. In collaboration with the photographer Radu Juster, Douyon renders elegant African Madonna's on a white background; Their works become an apology of the sacred, of black beauty, of motherhood, of the wonders of procreation and the fragility of the being.
